GRAIN STORAGE.

Effect on the Market of the Baltimore & Ohio Increase.

Divergent Views of Merchants and Railroad Officials.

How the Action of the Road is Interpreted by Dealers.

General Telegraphic News—The Passion Play Withdrawn.

Grain Storage.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The action of the Baltimore and Ohio railway company in requiring owners of grain in store to remove the same from the elevators before December 6, under charge of extra storage, is having a very serious effect on the grain market of this city, causing a heavy decline in prices and creating great excitement among dealers. One conservative operator said the effect would be far reaching, for it was a disastrous thing to throw 2,000,000 bushels of grain upon a market where they were not wanted. Dealers could never calculate upon any such measure as the one adopted by the Baltimore and Ohio railway company. They would take their chances in an ordinary rise and fall of the market, but to have a snap action, whereby the value of grain was reduced from two to four cents per bushel through extra and unlooked for charges, could not be calculated upon. The fall in prices at Baltimore affected this market, for New York could not afford to allow exporters to purchase grain in Baltimore cheaper than in this city, and had to lower the rates accordingly. He could not see what would be the end of the trouble unless the railway company withdrew from the position it assumed. Shippers in the west would undoubtedly send some of their grain to New York when they found it was likely to be blockaded in Baltimore.

Mr. David Dawes, who has a branch in Baltimore, said he was not yet conversant with the details connected with the action of the Baltimore & Ohio railway company. The railway company had not facilities enough for handling the large quantity of grain brought over that road to Baltimore. The railroad company had been engaged in the erection of a new elevator, but it would not be ready in time to render any assistance in this emergency, and the officials wanted at once to make room for the grain which is now on the road by having that in store shipped as soon as possible. The facilities for so doing being limited, has caused a fall in the prices and the effect may be serious.

Mr. E. R. Livermore of Broad street said he thought the railway company would recede from their present position, and that the trouble would only be temporary; but even during the short time it would last, the effect must be very serious to dealers. The western shippers would perhaps remember how they were caught by a blockade in Baltimore a couple of years ago, and if they now wished to ship, would doubtless choose some other port; but then the question would arise as to transportation for the railroad companies would naturally give the preference to their regular customers instead of new ones, and they might not be able to get the grain to the seaboard at all. If the Baltimore & Ohio railroad had to keep the grain locked up in cars, and with the elevators full, this would be their only resource; then there would be no rolling stock to move that which is now waiting transportation from the west. Again, farmers would not like to be charged with the cost of storage, for every cent of extra expense would have to be borne by the grain as the market price abroad was the same no matter whether it was exported from Baltimore, New York or Boston.

At the office of the Baltimore and Ohio railway, No. 315 Broadway, it was said that all the information they obtained was through the newspapers, as the trouble was East-bound freight. It was supposed the company wanted to get the rolling stock free, and to do so had to adopt measures which would compel the owners of the grain to remove it at the earliest possible period. If it was bad for the grain dealers to be compelled to sell their property hastily, it was also bad for a railroad to have its property blocked up with freight that was earning nothing.

Marine Mishaps.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The steamer Utopia, from London for New York, has put into Plymouth. She lost her funnel and sustained other damage by heavy weather. The steamer Ferdinand Vonder Tullen from New York, has passed Scilly Islands. She lost her boats and sustained other damage.

Fancy Fashions.

If you want a nobby suit we would advise you to go to Joe Clark's and get it. He turns out the neatest, newest and nobbiest styles seen on our streets, and unless you get your clothes made at Joe's you'r not in style. In every city there is always a tailor, who by reason of his styles and prices is at the head of his business. This is the case with Joe. He is in the lead in this city, and he intends to maintain his position if square dealing, the neatest fit and the lowest prices have anything to to do with it. His stock is really the finest in the city, having been purchased by him directly from large manufacturers of the east. All the latest patterns of piece goods are to be found amongst it, and any one can be suited.

His fits have long been recognized as the finest turned out in this city, and when you see a Fort Wayne "blood" with a glove-like fitting suit, you can gamble on it that it was made by Clark.

Of his work little need be said. It speaks for itself, and the fact that his patronage is constantly on the increase is the best warrant that our fashionable people know where to go when they want to be rigged out. He has in his employ a competent corps of tailors, who thoroughly understand their business in all its details. He gives his personal attention to every order, and the result is that when you get a suit at Joe's you are always sure to be satisfied.

Storm's Skates.

Every juvenile heart in this goodly city ought to beat a joyful tattoo against the ribs of its possessor, for there's going to be plenty of skating before the little flowers will become visible again, but the question will naturally arise in the mind of the small boy, "Where am I going to get my skates?" Why, at Joe Storm's, of course. He has the finest and largest stock in the city, and the styles are new, and the best thing you can do is to go and examine it at once. There is not a boy or young man in the city who should not indulge in skatorial exercise. It is healthy and invigorating, and as the ice is just splendid now, the best thing we know of for you to do is to go to Storm's, 3 East Columbia street, purchase a pair of skates, and go and have some fun.

WASHINGTON GAMBLERS.

A Raid to be Made on the Houses Frequented by Congressmen.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The recent police orders making every officer responsible for the existence of gambling houses on his beat excites police and sporting circles. The proprietors say it is simply for effect and conduct their establishments with the same openness as before. "They dare not touch a game when congress is in session," remarked one. "There are too many members who play agin the game. The police might catch the wrong ones—the men who made them. I've had a dozen congressmen in my place on a single night." The police on duty in these localities admit this difficulty. Nevertheless, an officer in plain clothes was observed near the entrance of a prominent gambling house to-night, fixing the identity of visitors. Gambling flourishes here since the revival of good times. Several establishments run night and day during the season, furnishing meals. Their patrons are chiefly attaches of foreign legations, congressmen and government official, great and small. A general raid is expected, of which the sports will be duly notified before hand and then games will go on.

The Passion Play Withdrawn.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Mr. Henry E. Abbey, the man under whose management the Passion Play was to have been produced, prints a card in the morning newspapers withdrawing the proposed representation on the ground that it appears that to produce it would give offence to the public. He says that he had always entertained a beleif that its production would inspire reverence and awaken devotional emotions, but he cannot attempt it in the face of the opposition of so large a body of christians as are already condemning it.

Supposed Murder.

SYRACUSE, Nov. 29.—While firemen were extinguishing the flames of a burning canal-boat at Palmyra the charred remains of a man were discovered, and afterwards identified as Frank Gallagher, a boatman. The body contained unmistakable marks of violence, and Joseph Johnson and Mac E. Lee were arrested, suspected of being concerned in the murder.

With His Hand on the Lever and the Lever Reversed.

Extensive Fire in Detroit—Killed by a Boiler Explosion.

An Important Litigation Case—General News by Telegraph.

At His Post.

MACON, GA., Nov. 29.—Early yesterday morning a passenger train on the Georgia Central railroad broke in half twelve miles from Macon. The steam brakes stopped the rear half on the down grade, but a heavy freight train following telescoped the sleeper half way, killing the engineer. The president of the Central road, William Wadley, and Vice-President Paul, in the sleeping car, escaped through a window. Several passengers were hurt, none fatally. A few moments after the collision a second heavy freight ran into the middle train, smashing the cars to fragments. Engineer Crosby, of the second train, was found with his hand on the reversed lever, and was jammed against the hot boiler by a freight car leaping over the tender, disemboweled and roasted. The other engineers and firemen leaped and were saved. Matt Freeman, of Macon, is badly cut in the head by a fragment of a car seat; Mr. Paul had an ankle sprained. The accident occurred on a steep grade, and the train could not be checked.

More Sculling.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The sculling match between Trickett and Wallace Ross came off this morning, over the Thames champion course, from the aqueduct to the ship at Mark Lane. Neither Ross or Trickett were in very good trim. Betting was even at the start, but Trickett won the race easy, beating Ross by four lengths, in consequence of a foul at Hammersmith. However, the umpire declared the men must row again. Ross had the Surry station. The start was a good one. Ross immediately went a length or more ahead and maintained the lead to Hammersmith, when the foul occurred, Trickett's scull touching Ross' boat. It was a good race, after this to the top of Cheswick Egol, where Trickett took the lead and at Barnes bridge rowed right away from Ross, who was then beaten, Trickett finishing easy, winning by four lengths.

Fire in Detroit.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov., 29.—A fire last night in the Arcade building completely gutted the Union job office, insured for $7,000, which fully covers the loss. The adjoining job office of J. F. Eby & Co., was somewhat damaged by water. The Eagle tobacco works, late K. C. Barkers, adjoining on the opposite side suffered some damage by smoke on the stock of tobacco. All is fully covered by insurance.

LATER.

In the previous report about the damage by smoke to the Eagle tobacco works, they now claim that none is suffered.

A False Report.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 29.—The report which has gained circulation abroad that the St. Louis bridge campany, had notified the railroads that in consequence of the immence traffic thrown upon the bridge by a partial plockade of the river, only perishiable freight would be transferred, is pronounced by Wm. Tansig, general manager of the bridge company, as utterly false. Mr. Tansig says there is scarcely a limit to the capacity of the bridge; that upward of 1,200 cars are being crossed daily, and still more could be transferred if required.

Sudden Death.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 29.—Rev. A. E. Hastings, a well known and beloved Presbyterian clergyman and pastor of the Union church in the eastern part of the city for the past eight years, died suddenly yesterday. His health had always been frail, but his devotion enabled him to accomplish a great amount of work. He leaves a wife and four children.

Edwin A. Wadleigh, esq, clerk superior court, Boston, Mass., adds his name to the joyous army using and recommending St. Jacob's oil. He certifies to a cure by the great German remedy of neuralgia and rheumatic pains in his family.

An Important Case.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—The case against B. F. Allen, president of the defunct Cook county national bank, for fraud against the government and banks, creditors, came up in the federal court this morning. A motion to quash the indictment was overuled and trial began. It has became a case of considerable interest on account of the prominence of Mr. Allen in banking and social circles, and for the long delay in bringing the case to trial, the failure of the bank having occured in 1874.

An Actress Injured by a Fall.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 29.—As the 'Unknown" combination was starting for Chicago on a late train Saturday night, and while yet in the depot, Miss Lillian Vane, one of the members, stepped upon the rear platform of the coach, and by some mischance slipped and fell back upon the floor of the depot, receiving severe injury to her head and shoulders. She is believed to be dangerously hurt, yet she persisted in continuing the journey.

Hanlan-Laycock.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—A match for £600 a side was arranged to-day between Hanlan and Laycock, to be rowed on the Thames within six weeks from the time of signing articles.

Boiler Explosion.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 29—The mud drum under the boilers at the works of the Norway tack factory blew up this morning, wrecking a part of the building and killing William Lodge, the engineer. The damage to the building is about $500.

Charged With Bigamy.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—James Bond, who was divorced on the 19th at Des Moines, Iowa, on his wife's petition, was arrested, Saturday, on complaint of wife No. 2, of Peoria, on a charge of bigamy.

ADDITIONAL CITY NEWS.

The Neil Burgess troup are stopping at the Robinson house.

The social four will give a bal masque at Arion hall, Christmas eve. It will be one of the finest balls of the season.

The accident insurance agent wears a fiendish smile as he watches the people tiptoeing along the sidewalks. Business, you know.

Sentence has not yet been passed on Lee Burt, the Burlager robber, but Judge Borden may pass sentence on all concerned in that affair this evening.

Judge Borden has not as yet given his decision in the Hench-O'Rourke case, and will not do so for several days. He still has the matter under advisement.

A Mr. Shipman, brakeman on the Muncie, had his hand broken Saturday while coupling cars. He is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

Two cars, loaded with hogs, broke down in the Muncie yard last evening, and Philley listened to the squealing of pigs instead of the "sweet singers in Israel" at church where he proposed spending the evening.

IT IS pleasing to note the activity displayed by the state democratic press and the eagerness manifested for the campaign in 1882. This spirit is commendable, and, if prolonged, will result in henceforth placing Indiana permanently in the line of democratic states.

Is it significant that the president of the United States selected the 329th day of the year as the fittest time for Thanksgiving?—Kendallville Standard.

YES, it would have been had he done so, but he didn't. He appointed the 330th day for Thanksgiving. Like Garfield's election, he was just tided over 329.

Mr. Hall was interested in gas stocks in various parts of Indiana, and information is received that he has sold for $14,000, his stock in the business. This $14,000 will be turned to good account in Toledo.

A NEW PARTY.

An exchange asks, in writing of a party to supplant the democracy, "but what will be the issue from which the new party will rise?"

This would be a grave question if there existed any pretext for the asking. It would be a question that could not fail to excite and to a great extent disorganize the political, national, religious and scientific world. All would be thrown into a vortex of discordant animation, the outcome of which no man can forsee. As the exchange remarks, there will always be two parties, and, it might have added, two parties of nearly equal strength. But these two parties exist now, they are living, throbbing and sensitive things, embodying all that is good and bad in the politics of the country, promulgating all the ideas of the modes of living under the arm of a republic, and thoroughly conversant with all the modern thoughts and ideas which every day are so widely scattered. These parties are distinguished in no manner more than by the assendancy of the one over the other. But is that a good and sufficient reason for the disbandment of the party which is in the minority, if at all, by less than 5,000 votes? Is it a reason sufficient to furnish a pretext for severing from the political body its strong right arm, for that relation has the democratic party borne to the country for the last twenty years. What do the republicans want a new competitor for, if they are not afraid that the next four years will bring such discord in their own ranks, and germinate such strength in the opposition, as will forever erase the republican party from the calendar of politics. The republican party is afraid of the democratic party, and good cause has it for such fear. We do not need any new party. The campaign of 1880 was the best lesson that could be taught the democrats, the worst victory that could have been gained by the republicans. It was a death struggle, and in this sense: The party that won, won only to fall into disorder when the victory was theirs, the party that lost, lost by such circumstances that had they been otherwise, would have placed it in the ascendancy by thousans of votes, and the knowledge of these circumstances in their true significance, was the lesson learned. We want no new party for four years and then the republican party will need it.

CURRENT COMMENT.

It Does Not.

Decatur Democrat.

An election to the presidency does not destroy the Congressional Record. It does not destroy the report of the Poland committee, a committee the majority of whom were of the same political faith as the president-elect. It does not destroy the fact that General Garfield, as chairman of the house committee on appropriations, sold his country for a bribe. It does not destroy the fact that General Garfield is guilty of sitting on the infamous electoral commission after having himself examined the case to be tried. No, an election to the presidency does not obliterate those things. They are indelible blots of infamy in the political record of General Garfield, and an election to the high office of president only makes them more conspicuous to the eyes of the American people.

The Choice.

Ligonier Banner.

There is no occasion for taking down Hancock poles. The hero of Gettysburg is still the choice of the Jeffersonian democracy and likely to remain so for four years to come.

Rather Rough.

Indianapolis Sentinel.

If Noah Davis is to be appointed to the bench of the United States supreme court, Judges Bradley and Strong will become more respectable by comparison. It will be rather rough, however, on a court, of which Mashall, Taney and Chase have been members.

Above All.

New York Sun.

Above all things, let us be profoundly grateful that our free institutions of government have been preserved; that in the coming month of March it will not be as it was four years ago, but that the rightfully elected candidate will be inaugurated as president of the United States.

No communication will be published in this paper hereafter without the signature of the writer is attached thereto.—Fort Wayne Gazette.

MR. KEIL has certainly made a wise move, and one calculated to please the intelligent portion of the community, as the vague, meaningless, silly communications constantly appearing in print without signatures are impositions alike on publisher and the public. When a man is held responsible direct to public opinion, he is apt to be as respectful as his nature will permit.

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City.

Success in Teaching.

To the Editor of The Sentinel.

Every teacher desires success. It can be had. Will you try to deserve it? If so, decide in your own mind what success is, then how to seek it, and lastly, work for it. Success is obtaining the right results. In teaching, it consists in making the pupils know—in leading them to love study, in forming right habits, in cultivating their tastes and talents judiciously.

To obtain success one needs knowledge and skill. He needs to know the right methods of work, and have skill in the same. Avoid all common errors, make a list of such errors as you know other teachers have, make a list of your own, and avoid them all. Seek perfection. The requisites of a good school are: A good school house, a good teacher, and good scholars. You can keep your house neat, quiet and well ventilated. The house has an influence on the school; keep the air pure and the rooms neat. You can be a good teacher. Success depends not upon one great effort, but upon regular, patient, and faithful work. Keep at it—"with time and patience the mulberry-leaf becomes satin." Go to school in season. Call school at the right time. Have the pupils come in promptly and quietly. Write out your order of exercises. Arrange programme as well as you can. Carry it out to the minute. Consider it as necessary for you to follow it as for the children to follow it. Provide enough work for every pupil.

Suppress whispering. Secure the co-operation of your pupils. Lead them to see that it is for their interest to have good order and a good school. Require hard study from the pupils.

Lead them to love study. Give short lessons. Assign them so plainly that none may mistake their lessons. Have the lessons well studied. Require cleanness, promptness, and accuracy in recitation. A little well known is of great value. Let not "how much, but how well," be your motto. Do not assist the pupil much at recitation. Cultivate their self-reliance. Self-help is their best help. Do not let them help each other. Excite an interest in study. Be enthusiastic yourself, and you will make your pupils enthusiastic. Encourage those who need encouragement. Review often. Talk but little. Be quiet yourself. Speak kindly and mildly. Be firm. If you love the pupils, they will love you. Keep good order. Government is the main thing. Have order and good order, whatever you lack. A good teacher can become better. Be not satisfied with your present skill. Seek to improve yourself, and study daily. Try to learn more each day than you learned the day before. Have a fixed time for your own study. Use that in study. If you do not love learning, why should your pupils?

Talk with parents about their children. Many parents can give you useful hints about teaching. Urge the parents to send their children to school regularly, and to talk with them about their studies, mark down your errors, their causes and effects—shun them in future. Look at the list often, and see if you are carrying out your plans.

Read upon teaching. Read for improvement. Adopt new methods with caution. Hold fast the good, reach after the better. See if you can give a reason for your methods of teaching. Write, make a list of marks of a good teacher. Attempt to make these your own. Be not satisfied with doing as well as others—surpass them. Surpass yourself daily. Study and practice these diretions. Failure will be impossible. A. J. C.

Nuptials of Owens—Shrock—Serious Accident to a Lad—Prospective Lecture—Other News.

Correspondence of The Sentinel.

BLUFFTON, Nov. 26.—The Methodist church was crowded last night by an audience assembled to witness the marriage of John Owen and Jennie Shrock. The groom is a member of one of our leading grocery firms, while the bride has long been a teacher in our public schools. Her resignation, which it is learned will be tendered at the close of the present term, will be regretted by all the patrons of the school.

A SENSATION

In Albion, Indiana, of a Domestic Nature.

According to the Kendallville News, Albion is having a sensation, and the fact of Fort Wayne being casually mentioned, attaches a local interest to the same. The News says the cause of it is a case of love, wherein treachery, tragedy, pistols and poison figure largely. The affair occurred in high life, which fact would be, no doubt, to make a full expose of it, interesting as well as perhaps disgusting. It has separated man and wife, and will undoubtedly lead to a permanent divorce, if either party can obtain one. Frank Clapp (son of Judge Clapp) and his wife are the parties directly interested, though the cause of the trouble is one Lyman, living at Mendon, Michigan, who holds a clerkship in a dry-goods store. Lyman has a wife, and she has been diligent in discovering the perfidy of her husband. It was through her that Clapp obtained letters implicating his wife and Lyman in ways that are dark and criminal. Letters had passed between Lyman and Mrs. Clapp, and they had held clandestine meetings at Fort Wayne, Chicago and other places. The affair finally culminated at Mendon last Thursday, where all parties met for a discussion. The matter had so affected Clapp's mind that he went about armed with a revolver, and, it is said, with a bottle of poison in his possession. He drank something from a bottle—supposed to be morphine—and commenced firing at Lyman. His revolver snapped twice, then the parties clinched, and in the struggle that ensued the revolver went off, the ball striking Lyman in the arm, but not wounding him seriously. The two men were then separated. It was by good medical skill only that Clapp escaped death from the morphine he had taken. Fielding Prickett and Judge Clapp were telegraphed for. They went up and brought Frank home Saturday. Lyman and his wife left Mendon on Friday night, not wishing to stay and meet the parties in court. The affair is a sad one, and Judge Clapp has the sympathy of the public.

OUR EXCHANGES.

What They Have to Say of the People and Affairs of Fort Wayne.

Plymouth Republican: Mrs. Simon Becker left Saturday last, to visit friends in Fort Wayne and vicinity. She will be gone about two weeks.

Lafayette Journal: The city of Fort Wayne is making a desperate effort to organize a military company. The city looks quite lonesome without a soldier company.

Richmond Palladium: Thomas W. Burk has been tendered a position in Fort Wayne with the Keystone Wringer company. He leaves on Wednesday morning, with the good wishes of his many friends. Miss Nora Parker of Fort Wayne, who had been visiting friends here several weeks, returned home this morning.

Decatur Democrat: The Fort Wayne papers beat the world on making charges and then retracting them. The city of Fort Wayne could dispense with three or four newspapers very conveniently. One morning and one evening paper, together with the weekly edition of each, are all that a city of that size can well support. More than that number is an imposition on the people. The Mayer house, Fort Wayne, had a dead-broke theatrical company on its hands last week.

A Terrible Accident.

The Huntington Democrat of last week has the following details of a terrible accident:

A most distressing and unfortunate accident occurred to the wife of Joseph E. Moore, who resides in the Quaker settlement, last Saturday evening. The lady was in the act of descending the stairs of her dwelling, when her foot caught on the topmost stair, and tripping, she fell headlong to the floor below, a distance of eight or ten feet. In the fall her head struck against an upright post and her scalp was split open from the top of the nose clear to the center of the head. In addition to these injuries, the unfortunate lady sustained a compound fracture of the left arm above the wrist, and the bones of the arm were forced clear through the skin. Dr. A. H. Shaffer was called and dressed the wounds. Notwithstanding the severe injuries received, Mrs. Moore is recovering as rapidly as possible, and it is to be hoped she will soon be entirely well.

THE AGED.—Mental and physical debility of the aged begins with loss of appetite and sleep. These two potent causes of premature and rapid decline have their origin in DEFECTIVE NUTRITION and IMPOVERISHED BLOOD. All other ailments may be warded off if these be restored to a condition of health. To accomplish this beneficent purpose, MALT BITTERS are superior to all other forms of malt and medicine. They are rich in bone and fat-producing materials They vitalize with new life the process of digestion. They dissolve and assimilate every article of food, thereby enriching and strengthening the blood. They feed the brain as well as the blood, banishing nervousness, melancholy and sleeplessness. For every form of debility of both mind and body of the aged, MALT BITTERS are the purest and safest restorative in medicine.

MALT BITTERS are prepared without fermentation, from Canadian BARLEY MALT and HOPS, and are free from the objections urged against malt liquors.

A Special Lot at Extraordinarily Low Figures.

WE CLOSE OUT THE BALANCE OF A MANUFACTURERS' STOCK AT MUCH BELOW THE WHOLESALE COST!

Late last week we closed out the balance of a large manufacturer's stock of cloaks, dolmans, ulsters, ulsteretts and circulars, making our own prices upon the goods, and getting them at such low figures that we shall be able to sell them at as low price as they have heretofore cost us. In this lot are a number of very fine Dolmans, which are finer than any goods we have had, but which we were forced to take along with the others. We propose to sell these at just what they are charged to us.

A $65 Dolman for $45;
A $50 Dolman for $34;
A $40 Dolman for $29;
A $35 Dolman for $25;
A $30 Dolman for $23.50.

Then, in lower priced goods, we shall sell:

A $6 Dolman for $4.95;
A $7 Dolman for $5.42;
An $8 Dolman for $6.00;
A $10 Dolman for $8.00;
A $12 Dolman for $9.95;
A $15 Dolman for $11.85;
A $17 Dolman for $14 75;
A $20 Dolman for $15.75;
A $25 Dolman for $20.00.

Equally fine bargains in cloaks, circulars and ulsters.

We have also just replenished our stock of children's cloaks, and have marked them at the popular prices peculiar to department stores.

We certainly believe that no such opportunity to buy a cloak or dolman has been presented to our friends and customers for the past five years.

We ask an inspection of our mammoth stock before you purchase elsewhere; also reminding you that we are offering unusually great gargains in

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 29.

FORT WAYNE.

Hail, snow and rain Sunday morning.

The school teachers received their pay Saturday.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather yesterday the churches were well attended.

Typhoid fever prevails to an alarming extent among the children of Bloomingdale.

The Gazette made a neat, but not gaudy, appearance in its new dress Sunday morning.

Professor Albro has given up the idea of resigning his position at the Methodist college.

Frank Cosgrove is putting new furniture in the jail, and will soon be comfortably fixed there.

The price of coal is still advancing and dealers complain of a great scarcity of the article in the east.

Pedestrians took the middle of the street yesterday on account of the icy condition of the sidewalk.

The acqueduct west of Orff's mill is a beautiful sight with its large icicles extending down to the river underneath.

A street car and a wagon collided on South Calhoun street this morning. No damage except some paint knocked off the car.

Poker playing is becoming quite fashionable at private residences in this city. One young man only had three invitations last night.

The Calhoun street railroad crossing watchman is the right man in the right place, always on hand to warn people of danger.

There is some talk of starting a drum corps in the city with Sandy White as drum major. Sandy knows how to pound the sheep skin.

Ex-Sheriff Munson is fixing up his West Wayne street property in a handsome manner, and will have a beautiful home when it is finished.

In Saturday's issue the types made THE SENTINEL say that a $2,000 fire had occurred at the Wabash oil house. It should have read a $20 fire.

Officer Benson has the sympathy of all law abiding citizens, and all unite in hoping that he will not be too severely censured by the police committee.

The young men who possess a pair of skates are happy, while those with fast horses and cutters are despondent and troubled because of the scarcity of snow.

Christians and sinners walked on slippery places yesterday, and a goodly number of both classes fell—from grace and to the sidewalks at the same time.

Rev. Grosse, of Buffalo, New York, was installed as pastor of Emanuel Lutheran church yesterday, Rev. Dr. Sihler officiating. The ceremony was very impressive.

Charley Comparet played the agreeable Saturday and showed the school marms through the court house. Charley is just too sweet for any use when the girls are around.

Five first-class companies will endeavor to please the amusement loving public of the city this week, Neil Burgess, in the "Widow Bedott," performing this evening at the Grand.

The greatest anxiety is experienced lest there should be a flaw in the title to property; yet a flaw in the title of health-a cough or Cold-is disregarded. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup removes all such at once.

The farmers are bringing wheat into the city in large quantities, the streets being lined with wagon loads of it, while the mills are almost unapproachable on account of the number of wagons waiting to be unloaded there.

A good subject for a thanksgiving discourse would be from the text "And Peter crew and the cock went out and wept bitterly," or something of that kind. It is possible we have not quoted the exact words, but the meaning is there.

George Kamm, of the postoffice, has invented a new rat-trap and will have it patented in a few days. George fills his overcoat pocket with apples, the rats get into the pocket, and George goes for them with the poker.

Shoaff photographed Trinity Episcopal church, which, on Thanksgiving day, was almost filled with the comforts of life, donated by the congregation for the poor of the city. Sterographic views of the same can be had in a few days.

At Pratt's court—State of Indiana vs. George Benson, for thumping Baron Westrumb. The case being a very exaggerated one a fine of twenty-five cents and costs was levied on George, and the probabilities are that he would have gone scott free had he only gave Westrumb a thorough drubbing, which the latter undoubtedly deserved.

The Pittsburg, Wabash, Bass, Olds and other shops and manufactories in the city are running on full time, and in some of the shops they are working over time. It is hoped the good old times are returning, when every man who wanted to work could procure a job somewhere at good living wages. Families were happy then, and songs filled the land from one end to the other.

A young lady by the name of Fanny L. VanCamp, of Milan township, filed a complaint that one Ira Richhart is the father of her unborn child, and calls on Ira to come up like a man and help support the youngster. The case will furnish plenty of amusement to the professional court room loungers, while the lawyers will have a good time dissecting the characters of the parties concerned.

An old man, lame in his left leg and carrying a cane in his right hand, a large bundle in his left and a large carpetsack on his head, marched down through the middle of Calhoun street, Saturday evening, and was the observed of all observers. Several doctors were following after the old gentleman, either with the idea of securing a stiff, or to be on hand to set a broken leg. It is presumed he escaped the clutches of the carvers and bone-setters.

William Shafer was down on Berry street Saturday evening and visited a saloon where he took out his pocket-book and paid some money. After putting the change into the book he put it into his pocket, and that, he says, is the last he saw of it. He now mourns the loss of $18.05—three five dollar gold pieces and the rest in change. Mr. Shafer has no idea where he lost the money, and only hopes that some honest man may find and return it.

Lade's Lay Out.

Max G. Lade, the well known dealer in sporting goods, desires to call the attention of the public to his large stock of sporting goods which he is now displaying. This stock was selected with great care by Mr. Lade expressly for his trade here. His large and ever increasing patronage are the best guarantees that his goods are the best, and his method of doing business the squarest of the square. He is thoroughly equipped for the skating season, having the largest and finest stock of skates in the city. Guns of every conceivable stye and make, and sporting goods of all kinds can be found always among his stock, which he never allows to run low. He enjoys the reputation of being a leader of his trade in this city, and this position has been won partly through his business methods and partly through the excellence and satisfaction given by every article leaving his store. His facilities for repairing guns on short notice are unexcelled, and he never fails to give satisfaction. Call on him at once.

Benson vs Westrumb.

Saturday night, as Officers Benson and Franke were strolling on East Berry street looking for violaters of the law, Benson was assaulted by Baron Von Westrumb, who hurled the most abusive language at the former. George stood it as long as any man could and then let his right mauler fly which caught the baron in the eye and landed him on the sidewalk. Westrumb called on Officer Franke to place Benson under arrest, but he said he considered himself under arrest already and asked Franke to collar the baron. Mrs. Westrumb now took a hand in the game and things assumed a tragic appearance for a few moments. Benson's mace fell from his pocket and the lady grabbed it and executed a war dance which would have shamed a Sioux chief; but things calmed down in a few minutes and all was again "quiet on the Potomac." Officer Benson reported to the chief of police and immediately went on duty again.

Sad Accident.

A young man by the name of Charles Bates, a brakeman on the Wabash road, fell from the tender of an incoming train at 6:15 o'clock yesterday morning, at Union station, a few miles west of this city, and had both legs cut off, but managed to crawl out from beneath the cars in time to save his life. Mr. Bates was brought to this city, where he received every attention possible. His parents reside at Logansport, this state, where he will, undoubtedly, be taken as soon as he is able to be moved.

A Card.

The managers of the "home for the friendless" wish to express their appreciation of the liberal donations made by prominent citizens, to assist in making the payment just due, also the way in which the "home" was remembered the past week, by some friends sending apples, flour, meal, fowls, groceries and a quarter of a beef from one who has ever been its friend. Managers of the home for the friendless.

Fort Wayne, Nov. 29, 1880.

ELIZABETH WINES.

Literary Respect Paid to an Old Residenty of Fort Wayne

Who Passed Away Last Week at the Advanced Age of Seventy-four.

Sketch of Her Life, Being the Funeral Address by Rev. D. W. Moffatt.

Remarkable Experiences of Two Fort Wayne Pioneers.

The following sketch of the life and character of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Wines, whose decease was chronicled in THE SENTINEL of Friday, is from the funeral sermon preached by the Rev. D. W. Moffatt, D. D., on last Saturday morning:

"The memory of the just is blessed."—Prov. 10: 7.

I deem it not inappropriate to say that it is the expressed desire of the deceased that these funeral services should be brief, and that it was only by request of friends and in view of the severity of the weather that they consented that the services should be held in the church and not at their own residence. And yet I may also be permitted to say that the long connection of Mrs. Wines with this church, a connection whose beginning dates back to within two years of its organization nearly fifty years ago, the identification of her own personal history with the history of its early struggles, labors and growth, the prominent and efficient part which as a servant of the Master she, with other souls, had in these things, and her devotion to the church which ceased not with the infinities of age nor until death sealed the fountain of thought and affection this side of the veil, make it eminently appropriate that the last roof which covers her remains should be that of the church she loved so much, and that the last movement of the form we all knew so well should be over the same path, which nothing but absolute physical debility prevented her from traveling every time the bell rang for service and from here to her last earthly resting place. The same facts also make it seem to me eminently fitting that I should occupy a few minutes in this service in giving a brief historical sketch of her life and character, for all of the earlier facts of which I am indebted to the older members of the church, who were co-laborers with her in the vineyard of the Lord.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wines, whose maiden name was Tilley, was born at Bladensburg, Maryland, April 18, 1806, and fell asleep in Jesus the evening of November 24, 1880. At an early age she united with the Presbyterian church, of Georgetown, D. C., the first Presbyterian church established in that district, then under the ministry of its founder, the Rev. Dr. Balch. November 10, 1831, she was married to Marshall S. Wines, in the city of Baltimore, and immediately afterwards the newly married couple started for what was then regarded as the far west. They first settled at Williamsport, opposite Attica, in the western part of this state. Colonel Wines, for he was best known by that title, soon became largely interested, as contractor, in the construction of the Wabash and Erie canal intended to connect lake Erie with the navigable waters of the Wabash river, and after a residence of a little more than one year at Williamsport they moved in the spring of 1833 to Fort Wayne. It was before the era of railways; work on the canal had just begun and they traveled the whole distance about, 150 miles, on horse back. Fort Wayne was then a village of 350 or 400 inhabitants. Colonel and Mrs. Wines began life here in a double log house on the north side of the St. Marys river near what is now Spy Run Avenue. The lack of stately mansions in that early day was more than recompensed by the genuine simplicity and warmth and heartiness of social intercourse, and there are some in this audience who can tell of the delightful winter evenings spent under the hospitable roof of that comfortable and cheery log house, and of how they used to cross the river on the ice in going and returning. After living there a year, Col. Wines having purchased, moved on a tract of ground which after his decease was sold to the Lutherans and on which they erected Concordia college now in the east end of our city. Near by he built mills which he operated in addition to carrying on his business as contractor, and the site of which is still marked by the ruin of the Maumee known to us as, "Wines' Dam."

Col. Wines and his young wife were in cordial sympathy religiously. They were both earnest, active christians and Presbyterian, and upon their arrival here in 1833, united by certificate with this church which had been organized with eleven members two years before by the Rev. James Chute. The same year he and the Hon. J. L. Williams were added to the eldership of the church which until then had consisted of Smallwood Noel and John McIntosh.

There was no house of worship of any denomination in the place. At that time the church having been crowded out of its previous place of meeting, the Masonic hall, about 20 by 40 feet in dimensions, by the arrival of the first printing press which came to Fort Wayne, was holding its meetings in a carpenter's shop, situated on the north side of Columbia street, a short distance east of where the Robinson house now stands, and which on Saturday nights was swept out and arranged with benches for seats and the work bench for the pulpit, ready for the uses of the Sabbath. In that carpenter's shop Messrs. Wines and Williams were together ordained elders by the pastor, the Rev. James Chute.

The little flock afterwards occupied successively a room in a tavern on the other side of Columbia street, and the old court house until 1837, when they finished and occupied their house of worship, and the first house of worship built in Fort Wayne, a frame building forty feet square on the south side of Berry street, a square and a half east of this edifice.

During all this period and onward till his death Colonel Wines took a leading part in all church and christian work, and had a sympathetic and efficient co-laborer in his wife. A member of the church who recollects those days says: "He was one of the most active elders with which a church could be blessed, and his efforts to build up his church were most efficiently seconded by his wife." Their residence east of town was then in the country. The way to it was a large dirt road cut through the woods. But through weather fair and foul, through rain and sleet and snow and mud they came, sometimes in a carriage, sometimes in a sled, sometimes on horse-back and sometimes on foot, no matter how, but they always came faithfully and regularly to every church service, to prayer meeting, and to Sunday school, she to teach her class and he to teach or superintend the school. And not only so, but he organized and carried on neighborhood prayer meetings held at private houses, gathered a Sunday school at his own house, visited and cared for and prayed with the sick and dying and in every way practicable sought to do good and bring men to Christ. In 1842 he died at the early age of 42, leaving behind him a name fragrant of uprightness, enterprise, generosity and enthusiastic christian devotion, and leaving, too, a widow, with four small children.

My limited time will not permit me to follow the rest of her life historically. Nor is it necessary, for it was but a continuation in all its characteristics as long and as far as physical powers held out, of the beginning.

A distinguishing trait, well known to those acquainted with her in her active days, was benevolence. While her husband was engaged on the canal, I have been told that, when a malignant fever broke out among a large number of emigrants, some of whom were in his employ, she devoted herself for weeks to the care of all the sick, and from that time on she was always visiting, waiting on and caring for sick and people in need. In providing supplies for home missionaries, which was better attended to then than now, and in every benevolent undertaking she was one of the leaders in this church and this community. She was energetic and persevering, and would not give up any good work till it was accomplished. A teacher in the Sabbath school until compelled to desist by advancing age, "she was" says a friend who has known her all these years "the most faithful attendant at church and prayer meeting in this whole place," to which I may add, we all are witnesses. For during the eight years and a half of my pastorate here you and I have always known if Mrs. Wines was not at church or prayer meeting that Mrs. Wines was sick. Her own ideas of fidelity in all religious duties and her interest both in the church's prosperity and in the spiritual welfare of others—an interest, which in early life became an inseparable part of her character, made her feel concerned over any apparent neglect of religious duty on the part of others. She was one of the noble women who as long as they were physically able undertook to keep up acquaintance with and visit every family of the congregation and when infirmity made that no longer possible she looked to see them all in the sanctuary and really felt solicitous for both the physical and spiritual health of any whose absence she observed.

She was an intelligent and devout worshipper in the house of God. She joined with audible voice in the songs of praise, and with silent concord of heart in the public prayers, and not only always knew what the sermon was about, but also intelligently appropriated whatever spiritual food it contained. For what is most cheering and comforting for those who knew and loved her best to reflect upon to-day is that all her fidelity and ideas of fidelity, her interest in the prosperity of the church and her solicitude for the spiritual welfare of others, together with the activity of her younger days in religious and benevolent works, all had their root in a deep and abiding faith in the facts and verities of the Gospel of Christ, a growing experience of the blessed gracious power and a devoted love to the Lord Jesus Christ, in whom she found refuge, solace, satisfaction and eternal life.

Of imperfections, it needs not that I should speak for who has them not? And she wore hers on the outside where all could see them. Her experimental knowledge of spiritual truth was too clear and deep for her ever to lay claim to perfection or to acknowledge the validity of that claim by others. She claimed no more than that she was a sinner saved by the love and atoning sacrifice of the Redeemer of mankind. And now she has left all her imperfections behind and has found in His presence in the mansions of the blest the accomplishment of her supremest life long wish, the blessedness of seeing her Saviour "as He is" and of being transformed into His perfect spiritual likeness.

To her it was granted to live to see the church to whose prosperity and growth she and her husband, in the service of the Master, devoted their youthful energies, grow from the small handful of 1833, seeking a place to worship God in shops and halls and court rooms, to the present large congregation which worships in this spacious auditorium, and to see also two other churches of the same denominational faith, the one offshoot and the other a fostered child of this church, spring up by its side and grow into large and flourishing congregations, fountains of blessing, with it, and with many churches of other denominations, to a city of 27,000 people.

To her surviving family, children and grand children, she leaves a precious memory to cherish and from the society of Jesus and the redeemed in heaven beckons them to follow. And if this very brief and imperfect sketch of the life and character of one who by energetic and active service of the Master did so much in the generation now passing away to build up His cause in this place, shall in any way or in any degree stimulate the younger and stronger of the church to seek yet larger results by similar devotion, it will not have been given in vain.
